

Officials Reveal Many Schemes to Defeat the Canadian Customs Laws

UNDER-VALUED GOODS BEING DUMPED HERE

Efforts Made by U.S. Firms
Through False Invoices

Beat Law
Canadian Press
OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—Action of customs officials have recently been directed against what seemed to be a steady stream of goods being dumped into this country, chiefly from the United States. Scientific efforts are being made through false invoices to beat the law.

It has been disclosed that these firms were the cause of the loss of $1,000,000 in duties by the United States on the re-export of foreign commodities. It was learned that a large number of firms were using the same name to provide the financial statement for United States merchandise to dump into Canada certain imported goods which they themselves have had in stock for many years and for which the demand in the United States has ceased. By invading these countries at a moment when their real value and export value are low, they are able to dump their goods at a price which would result in a loss of $1,000,000 in duties to the United States. As this was preferable to their taking the straight loss, which would come through the failure of the demand in the United States for these particular commodities, the traffic had reached some proportion.

Rushing To Alton To Forestall Law

Associated Press
LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Daily Express in a dispatch from Bombay today said that British firms were being urged to rush to Alton in order to forestall the law which would result in a loss of $1,000,000 in duties to the United States. As this was preferable to their taking the straight loss, which would come through the failure of the demand in the United States for these particular commodities, the traffic had reached some proportion.

Montreal, Nov. 25.—The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railway for the week ending Nov. 21, 1929, were $4,730,000, as compared with $4,627,000 for the corresponding period of 1928, decrease of $102,000, or 2.2 per cent.

Belmont said Nov. 19, a week ago today. For seven days, snow and fog had kept the two planes apart. The two other planes of the Blenheim patrol were scheduled to leave Belmont shortly after November 12, but when Crickham left the Belmont last Thursday they had not reached there.

Saturday, Crickham returned to Port Belmore, taking with him several reports of conditions along the coast. When the home-ward journey will be continued remains uncertain. If all the party has reached Port Belmore, the flight may be under way, but until Port Belmore is reached there is little chance of further news from the isolated explorers.

There is no radio station at Port Belmore, but a Revolution in the Canadian Corps of Signals maintains a wireless post, from which Colonel MacAlpine could communicate with the outside world.

him, call him their "Père la Victoire" (Father of Victory). He was in actual truth the saviour of France, and all would value that title above any other. He would rather have that title above any other. He would rather have saved France than all the rest of the world, plus a thousand other worlds, if France were not included. His courage cannot be exaggerated, nor his severity, his grim, ruthless determination in time of danger to his country. A young man, he had seen the humiliation of France after the war of 1870, when an Italian invasion, controlled by a league of nations, poured the French into disaster. He was determined that it should not happen again, and, thanks to him, it did not happen.

He assigned the big war for France, supplying the moral force that brought victory. Clemenceau stood behind the young and middle-aged fighting at Verdun. "And he stood behind them."

Where there was hesitation or pessimism, defeatism, he had men about. And where there was the greatest danger, he stood with the common soldiers, to learn how they were treated, what unnecessary risks they ran, if any.

An officer told him: "You must retire. To stand where you are is to commit suicide."

The old man replied: "I may be too old to commit suicide for love in the road; but I am not too old to commit suicide for the love of France."

Well may the French think of him, as millions of them do, that they had such a man.

He never feared bullet, shell, sword, nor the face of any man.

And dead, he was nothing. "Glorious" he called, "wings of angels" he called, any elaborate funeral and was buried, by his command, beside his father in a forest of Yverdon, land of his birth, within sound of the ocean.

And, like his father, he was buried in a plain wooden box.

A sacred spot for every Frenchman and all that love liberty and courage, that lonely grave of the father and son, near 't's been looking out to the west.

THOUSANDS of people follow the practice of taking first sips of Buckley's before and after going to a theatre or any public place. "Buckley's" constipate and germicide that "act like a flash" on the germs that find their way into the mouth and from people coughing sneezing. Buckley's Mixture is just as valuable as a cure of colds, coughs, sore, flu, bronchitis, as to give speedy relief for each or cold.

DOROTHY DIX

Can a Jealous Couple Make a Success of Matrimony?—What Can a Husband Do When His Wife Tires of Marriage?—Doubting Thomas

DEAR MISS DIX:—I am engaged to a nice girl and we are planning to be married very soon. Both of us have been working for quite a while. My future wife is very much for me to join her church and I am afraid that my family will disapprove and that I would have hard feelings if I did so. I think that we should not live with either of our families, but go to Europe, but my future wife wishes to live at her mother's. My future wife is to continue to work after we are married, but I seriously object to her doing so. My wife above all to be truly happy and I shall appreciate any suggestions that you may make about how to make our marriage a success. Both of us are quite single. J. C. H.

Answer:—My first suggestion, J. C. H., is to postpone matrimony. That means more marriages than any other one thing for when matrimony enters the door, peace and happiness fly out of the window.

They say there is no cure for jealousy, but I think that common sense is a very effective remedy for it. If, when you feel an attack coming on and perceive that you are getting green-eyed, you will take a large and copious dose of good old hard work, you will find that it will reduce you to sanity and serenity.

Just consider how jealous jealousy is. How absurd. You must think that you are marrying a true woman and one whom you can trust, or else you would not have picked her out for a wife. You must think that she loves you and prefers you to any other man, or else she would not marry you because you are so infinitely more so than any other man. If she is not so, there is no woman in the world who she should marry except for your own sake.

Then you imagine every time you see her talking to another man that this woman whom you know to be honorable is about to betray you. That she has agreed to love you and is ready to sleep with any stranger who comes about?

So if you want to be happy after you are married, you and your wife must make up your minds to trust each other, and to believe the best of each other, not to be always on the lookout, each expecting the other to play some dirty little trick. There is nothing really so insulting as jealousy. It shows that the jealous one believes you capable of doing the thing of which he or she suspects you.

As to whether you should join your sweetheart's church or not, that is a matter of your own religious convictions and you should be guided by your conscience. In the matter and not by what your family will think about it. Certainly when a married couple belong to the same church it makes for peace and harmony in the family, because there are enough things for a husband and wife to fight over without their engaging in a religious war.

Inasmuch as you are a poor young couple starting out on a very limited income. I think you are wrong in objecting to your wife keeping on with her present job. It is not only the money that she brings in, but her independence, which will automatically settle the question. A girl who has been used to running her own affairs and being financially independent is very apt to be discontented and disgruntled when she finds herself with nothing to do except to try to outwit her husband by some trick or device. It will go on and on in the end and the end will be that she will have to leave the money to her husband.

Naturally, some that mothers-in-law cause more discord than drink, or vamps, or any other thing in the world. If your girl doesn't like you, you will find it hard to be a father for her, but you must love her with enough to be your wife. A girl with the mamma complex is a mighty poor risk in matrimony.

DEAR MISS DIX:—I have been married for four years and have a boy 8 months of age. I have done everything I could to be a good husband and a good father. I was building a home for my wife and child, but now my wife thinks that she does not love me and that married life is killing her and cannot keep it up any longer and she wishes to leave me and go back to her own family. I am a Mason and she says that I should put the child in the Masonic Orphan Home. I am so depressed over the thought of losing my wife and being separated from my boy and having my home broken up that I have lost my hold on things. What I shall I do? A MISERABLE YOUNG MARRIED MAN.

Answer:—It will be small comfort to you to tell you that your loss is small when you lose a woman who is so selfish, and has so little natural feeling that she is willing to drop her own baby in an orphan asylum in order to get rid of it, but take the consolation for what it is worth.

I often think that nothing is so much more pitiful than these wretched men and women who are sitting over the loss of worthless husbands and wives that they should regret in getting rid of it.

Of course, when a woman wants to go, there is no way to keep her, nor will there be any happiness for you in your home if she was kept in it by force. She is not your property. She is a human being, and she has the right to go where she pleases. If she is not your wife, she is not your property. If she is not your wife, she is not your property. If she is not your wife, she is not your property.

Perhaps she will find that she is not so different to other men as she thinks she is. She will find that she is not so different to other men as she thinks she is. She will find that she is not so different to other men as she thinks she is. She will find that she is not so different to other men as she thinks she is.

And if there is anything good in her she will come back, a sadder but a wiser woman. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX:—I am in love with a boy who is lame in one foot and lame in the other. He is intelligent, well educated, good looking, kind and good and has a good position, but people make fun of me going around with him. Does it make such a big difference that I must give up my job? Will I be "tired" if I marry him? MARIE.

Answer:—I think you must be more afflicted in the head than in the foot to ask such a question, or to be influenced by the unfriendly ridicule of people with so little heart and sympathy that they see anything in this in a physical affliction.

Believe me, it is a thousand times better to be crippled in your foot than it is in your brain, or your nerves, or your conscience. Big, stout men like this boy who you are very sure that his lameness makes you love him more and feel freer toward him instead of making you ashamed of him. DOROTHY DIX.

"I haven't, and nobody else has," I don't believe that Junior the liar and the Green Forest boy are talking about when they say that they have found a book belonging to the Smiths. It's my opinion that he has found it.

"Of course he has," replied Reddy in the most positive way. "Of course he has. No one can tell me that he could hide where the sharpener lives in the Green Forest cave. There isn't a single cave for him to hide in, and there isn't a single book in the cave for him to take. He has found it. He has found it. He has found it."

Ald. Keillor to Prove Labor Council's Over-Expenditure of Huge Amount

IS BAITED BY ALD. SHEPPARD ON STATEMENT

Says Wage Boosts Have Resulted in Decrease in Future Building

Baited by Ald. Sheppard and other labor members of the city council in the closing moments of the last meeting of the 1929 city council early Tuesday morning, Ald. Dr. J. A. Keillor undertook to prove his statements that this year's 1929 labor council had cost the city an over-expenditure of $200,000 this year.

Ald. Dr. Keillor had previously

PROTEST SALE OF MOOSE MEAT

Sportsmen and Northern Indignant Over New Regulation

Intense indignation is being registered in the city by sportsmen and northern dwellers here, at the news from the east that the sale of caribou and moose meat has been legalized in the North West Territories.

"They cut out this sort of thing in the States years ago and now we're having it in Canada," a prominent member of the Northern Alberta Game and Fish Protective League said, denouncing the idea of market hunting.

Here tonight the council granted big salary increases to department heads, but you forget that these increases have to be paid for by the taxpayers, the majority of whom are not making so much as the men to whom you are granting increases.

In order to maintain our industries growth and expansion we must keep in line with other western cities," declared Ald. Keillor.

Stories Of Crash Fail To Jibe When Driver Is Injured
His home called him when a ladder projecting from the back of his car advanced the windshield of a car driven by John Keillor, 12311 St. Albert, at 10 a.m. on Monday, October 14, 1929, on St. Albert street, and thrown to the ground and injured to an extent that necessitated his immediate removal to the Royal Alexandra hospital.

Contradictory accounts of the crash are given by eye-witnesses, John Keillor, 12311 St. Albert, who was on the sidewalk, says that he saw a crash car inevitable and signaled to Keillor to halt his car.

Keillor and other witnesses say that the auto was traveling at not more than 15 miles an hour, and that there was no red flag on the top of the ladder, as claimed by the police.

a distance of less than fifty feet this achievement seemed trivial, indeed. A week ago I might have made a story of it but now everything was dwarfed by my close contact with one of the largest animals in the North American continent.

I likewise neglected to make a note of the weather during my trip. Yet I had two amazingly perfect, sunny days—the first two consecutive days of clear weather in five weeks. On my return to the camping site, I could see that the upper reaches of the big river were covered with ice from shore to shore, whereas, on the way to the moose country they had been open. It seems that I slept "cold" during the two coldest nights of the season, slept soundly and comfortably, without catching a cold. Here is an instance where a thermometer would have been useful for recording purposes. That it was colder than 14 degrees below freezing, however, is indicated by the fact that the three small lakes on the homeward stretch, which had remained open during the temperatures as high as the above, were also completely frozen over. On the shore of one of them I could see an abandoned beaver cabin, crushed in at the top. Half a mile away from the shore, the unmistakable tracks of an otter, naturally I followed them to where the animal had slid on its belly into the water.

Many people are handicapped with poor health; they get up mornings tired and weary after a restless, indifferent, way, disappetizing and unenjoyable. Their appetite is poor, they have no energy, are troubled with constipation and frequently with either a bladder irritation or other annoying ailments.

dark, amber-colored stream. A few hundred yards farther on I came upon the largest rabbit tracks I have ever seen outside of Alaska; where Arctic hares grow to an astounding size, some of them weigh fifteen pounds, dressed and are four feet long.

I did not get this "big one" on the way home, nor ever done, be it fish or rabbit. But I did "jump" a muskrat and cotton-tail from his bed of pine needles. Like the snow-shoe rabbit, the muskrat, he seemed after getting a few feet, his eyes sharply cast behind him to look for the hunter. I did not arrive in my bow and arrow until I was a good distance away. The event was last night of its reporting my overland journey to the moose country.

It snowed throughout the day of my home-coming. In the open there was a fifteen-mile wind, but in the deep woods the flakes drifted gently to earth. The great breast-keepers of the lake of my moose-side clothing, where rain would have penetrated to the hide on the inside. And as the first dawn finally died down, I went to sleep on my fragrant balsam spruce-jugger in the realization that after all these weeks I had secured a picture of a bull moose at close range. For a while I sat, cross-legged, in front of the fire, mauling the footprints of a moose, and here, too, and I was obliged to abandon the raft and walk a quarter of a mile to the camp. Once in camp, I built a roaring fire in front of my shelter, where I was waiting open to the country and as long as possible in order to have as much time as possible to get a good picture of a bull moose at close range. For a while I sat, cross-legged, in front of the fire, mauling the footprints of a moose, and

Winnipeg Market
Tuesday

WINNIPEG, Nov. 26.—Quietly moving yesterday's done and finished wheat values hovered closely about the levels of yesterday's done and finished wheat values. A few unfavorable factors, particularly the lack of export business, and a few reports indicated a slight demand in all foreign quarters.

At the Winnipeg market, featureless session was held on Tuesday. The market was quiet and prices were generally unchanged. Future prices in all cases were held flat.
